What is Sustainable Development?

Sustainable development can be defined as an approach to the economic development of a country without compromising with the quality of the environment for future generations.

Why is there any need of Sustainable Development?

In the name of economic development,
the price of environmental damage is paid
in the form of land degradation, soil erosion, air and water pollution,
deforestation, etc.

This damage may surpass the advantages of having more quality output of goods and services.

Sustainable Development Goals

To promote the kind of development that minimises environmental problems.

To meet the needs of the existing generation without compromising with the quality of the environment for future generations.

DONATE WHAT YOU DON'T USE.

More than 700 million people still live in extreme poverty.

The COVID-19 pandemic will push an estimated 71 million additional people into extreme poverty

To end poverty in all its forms everywhere by 2030

2 ZERO
HUNGER

To end hunger, achieve food security and improved nutrition, and promote sustainable agriculture

 SUSTAINABLE DEVELOPMENT GOALS

About 2.3 billion people did not have regular access to safe, nutritious and sufficient food in 2022

ZERO HUNGER:
WHY IT MATTERS ?

VACCINATE YOUR FAMILY.

Vaccinations resulted in an 80% drop in measles deaths between 2000 and 2017.

An additional 18 million health workers are needed, primarily in low- and lower- middle income countries, to achieve universal health coverage by 2030

PARTNERSHIPS
FOR THE GOALS

LOBBY YOUR GOVERNMENT TO BOOST DEVELOPMENT FINANCING.

Achieving the SDGs could open up US$12 trillion of market opportunities and create 380 million new jobs by 2030

Sustainable development is largely about people, their well-being, and equity in their relationships with each other, in a context where nature-society imbalances can threaten economic and social stability. Because climate change, its drivers, its impacts and its policy responses will interact with economic production and services, human settlements and human societies, climate change is likely to be a significant factor in the sustainable development of many areas (e.g., Downing, 2002).
